Barbarian class guide pathfinder

The screenshot shows the character creation interface for a Barbarian class. On the left, there's a portrait of a female character with pale skin and red hair. To the right of the portrait is a table of stats: STR 10, DEX 12, CON 12, INT 8, WIS 10, and CHA 10. Below the stats is a 'CLASS' dropdown menu where 'Barbarian' is selected. The main area features a large image of a female Barbarian standing on a rocky shore. To the right of the image is a section titled 'Barbarian' with a descriptive paragraph: 'Barbarians excel in combat, possessing the martial prowess and fortitude to take on foes seemingly far superior to themselves. With rage granting them boldness and daring beyond that of most other warriors, Barbarians charge furiously into battle and mow all who would stand in their way.' At the bottom right is a button labeled 'LOAD FEMALE BLOOD'. Below the main image is a 'CLASS PROGRESSION' bar showing levels 1 through 20. Underneath the progression bar is a section titled 'BARBARIAN LEVEL 1' with various skill icons and descriptions.

The barbarian earns DR 3 / $\frac{1}{3}$ or increases the value of any reduction in the existing damage of 3. These bonuses increase by +1 every three barbaric levels later (6th, 9th, 12th, 15th and 18th level). A barbarian with this ability can still lose his bonus dexterity to the armature class if an opponent successfully uses the fake action against her. He still loses his dexterity bonus for the armature class if immobilized. JBE: Bohrc Durgar Add +1 to the total number of rabbia rounds per barbarians' day. If not otherwise specified, a barbarian cannot choose a single power over once. A character who takes an alternating class element does not count as having the class element replaced when meets requirements or prerequisites. © 2009, PAIZO Publishing, LLC; Author: Jason Bulmahn, based on Jonathan Tweet material, Monte Cook, and Skip Williams. For example, a paladin could not be a hospital and a non-dead scourge, since both modifies the characteristic of the evil class and replace the aura of the class of justice. In combat this option does not take effect unless the barbarian has chosen to give times (or another five increase). In the habits of their people, in the fury of their passion, in the scream of the battle, these brutal souls know the conflict. This bonus accumulates with all other modifiers, including the moral bonus on Will save that he also receives himself during the anger of him. During the fury, a barbarian cannot use any choremony-based skills, dexterity or intelligence (except acrobatic, fly, intimidated and ridden) or any ability to require patience or concentration. They have a sixth sense regarding danger and resistance to resist everything that could lead to. Each alternative class function replaces a specific class feature from the Mother category. Starting from the 1st level, a barbarian can anger for a certain number of rounds on day of 4 + its constitution modifier. The total number of rage rounds a day is renewed after resting for 8 hours, although these hours must not be consecutive. The clerics and wizards can receive a capsize on the 20th level, despite not having one to start. A paladin could, however, be both a dead flagel that a warrior of holy light, since none of their new class features replaces the same basic feature. At the 20th level, when a barbarian gets angry, the moral bonus for his Strength and Constitution increases to +8 and the moral bonus for his Will save increases to +4. Indomitable Will (Ex) While in anger, a barbarian of 14th level or higher earns a +4 bonus on Will save to resist the spells. Unstoppable (Ex) At the 20th level, nothing can kill the barbarian, though not for lack of attempts. Known as barbarians, these warmongers know little about training, preparation rules of war; for them there is only the moment, with the enemies standing before them and the awareness that next moment could lead their death. This bonus stack with the fast motion feature of the class and applies only under the same conditions as that capacity. Damage reduction may reduce damage to 0 but not less than 0. With the anger that grants them audacity and audacity beyond that of most other warriors, the barbarians rage into battle and destroy all those who oppose their path.
